

BEACHWOOD RESORT

Northwestern Washington's gateway resort located on the beautiful Birch Bay

Whether you consider it the beginning of Interstate 5 or the terminus, I-5 takes you to Blaine, Washington, and Beachwood Resort. Situated near the U.S./Canada border, Blaine has several nicknames. These include “Where America Begins” and “The Gateway to the Pacific Northwest.” No matter what you call it, the region is a beautiful setting for Beachwood Resort.

Pull your rig into the 80-acre resort that's two hours north of Seattle and one hour south of Vancouver, and plan to enjoy all the amenities of home. You'll find 24-hour security and spacious RV sites with hook-ups. Or if you prefer to leave your rig at home, book one of the fully appointed rental cabins or trailers.

Enjoy one of three heated pools, spas and sauna, weight and exercise room, sightseeing, family activities, or just relax and read your favorite book. Meet new friends while playing basketball, pitching horseshoes, or playing tennis. Don't worry if you forgot the salt or oil, visit the on-site store and get everything you need. Join one of the many planned year-round activities, which include potlucks, dances, sports, breakfasts, and much more. And don't worry about the weather, the coastal climate of the area provides fairly mild weather compared to the rest of the Pacific Northwest. Blaine enjoys more sunny days and a milder climate than neighboring communities.

Enjoy the resort's limited Wi-Fi and the updates that have been made on the rental units and around the pool. According to one of the Managers, Jody Fox, “We're always looking for ways to make things better on the resort.”
