When President/CEO Dick Harrison says it's a family affair, he's not kidding. More than 40 years ago, his father began operating Leisure Point and the resort has been in the family ever since. So far, four generations of Harrisons have worked the property and continue to bring their special brand of family pride to maintaining the cleanliness and the beauty of the resort.

Speaking of cleanliness, according to Harrison, that's what people notice and comment on most. "Everywhere you look it's just clean. A lot of attention is placed on the grounds of the park and we do an extensive amount of plantings and landscaping," he says.

Travelers may come to the Delaware Coast for its clean, sandy beaches and excellent fishing, crabbing, and clamming, but a stopover at Leisure Point Resort is a good reason for them to stay. Don't forget to bring your boat because the resort offers an outstanding marina with more than 300 boat slips accommodating everything from small John boats to 24-foot hull or pontoon boats. Some campsites offer a beautiful view of the water, are tree shaded and all have three-point hook-ups. While there, enjoy the swimming pool, clubhouse, fitness center, volleyball, horseshoes and basketball.

Activities abound at the resort with regularly scheduled weekly activities and special themed weekends. Attend weekly classes in ceramics or water aerobics. Take the family to Friday night bingo or bring the kids to Thursday evening activities.

Nearby attractions include Cape Henlopen State Park, the Cape May-Lewes Ferry, and all of the fun to be found on the Rehoboth Beach boardwalk with its amusements, eateries, and special events.
